

Reds Claim Hitler Is 'Suicide;' Quote Aid

By ROMNEY WHEELER
London, May 3 (AP)—Adolf Hitler, who vowed to rule the world, committed suicide in the ruins of Berlin with Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels and the chief of the German general staff, Gen. Hans Krebs, a Soviet communique said today.

Russians declared their informant was Dr. Hans Fritzsche, Goebbels' chief lieutenant, who was captured as Berlin fell. It was presumed Russian commanders on the scene would make vigorous inquiry to obtain indisputable proof.

Whether Hitler was a suicide or whether he was the victim of a brain hemorrhage, a possibility reported by supreme Allied headquarters, there was little doubt among Allied leaders that the Fuehrer indeed was dead and that he had met death in a manner which would thwart any die-hard Nazi attempt to build a Wagnerian legend about him.

A statement authorized by the supreme Allied command told of a secret meeting eight days ago at Luebeck, Germany, between Gestapo Chief Heinrich Himmler and Swedish Count Folke Bernadotte, reputed peace go-between, at which Himmler was reported to have said "Hitler is so ill he might already be dead."

Himmler was quoted as saying Hitler at that time could not live more than two days longer. A German general named Schillenburg, who was present at the meeting, said Hitler had been stricken with a brain hemorrhage.

Von Rundstedt Agrees
These reports gave the lie to a Nazi propaganda campaign to convince the world that Hitler died at the head of his troops in a Berlin command post in the Reichs chancellery, fighting to the last against Bolshevism.

The remaining German radio stations at Hamburg, Goerlitz, Linz and Prague hammered at this theme yesterday. The Goerlitz station late last night read at dictation speed a propaganda story for publication in all Sudetenland papers today.

Captured Field Marshal von Rundstedt, former Nazi commander on the western front, supported the idea that Hitler was a victim of his own diseased brain. Told of German reports of the Fuehrer's death, he replied that Grand Admiral Karl Doenitz had been at the helm of battered Germany for some time. He said that the last time he had seen Hitler, the Fuehrer was "shaking like he had palsy." In Washington, President Truman said he had it on good authority that Hitler was dead, but did not know how the death occurred.

Pacific War

Guam, May 3 (AP)—Daring U. S. Seventh Division infantrymen drove a tank-led spearhead 1,400 yards into the tough Japanese defenses on southern Okinawa yesterday to score the first sizable breakthrough of the 32-day campaign.

An intensified coordinated push, with fresh American troops in action, was under way all along the four-mile line, the navy reported today.

Major Gen. Archibald V. Arnold's Seventh Division, veterans of the Aleutians, the Marshalls and the Philippines, smashed ahead by night through enemy positions on the eastern flank to reach Gaja hill, within one mile of Yonabaru town.

They struck in the early morning darkness, their way crushed and burned by tanks and flamethrowers. It was the first major night ground action attempted by American forces in the Pacific ocean areas theater.

The Seventh Division drive extended beyond the southern end of the Yonabaru airfield. Nearby heights must be cleared of enemy artillery and mortars before the air-drome is seized.

East Indies Drive
Manila, May 3 (AP)— Allied troops, opening a campaign to recover the rich Dutch East Indies, swept quickly toward Tarakan's air-drome and Lingkas town today from beachheads easily established Tuesday on just off important oil depot island than north-eastern Borneo.

Americans on Mindanao island, in the southern Philippines, meanwhile appeared about to take the hemp port of Davao, center of pre-war Japanese settlement, without the fierce fight they had expected.

They advanced another six miles Tuesday to reach the western edge of Davao city, last important holding of the Japanese in that part of the commonwealth.

Australian troops, aided by a few Dutch Indonesian units, established two beachheads on Tarakan after the U.S. Seventh Fleet, augmented by Australian cruisers and destroyers and American, Dutch and Australian aircraft, had bombed and shelled oil storage tanks intermittently for four days. Thick, black smoke covered the southern beaches.

Nazi Forces Split Into Weak Pockets

By TOM OCHILTREE
(Associated Press War Editor)

Hamburg, Germany's second city, surrendered today to the British Second Army a few hours after the great port of 1,682,220 had been declared an open city by its radio.

The entire enemy position in northern Germany appeared to be dissolving. In that area the Nazis were split into unfeasible pockets by a linkup of British airborne troops and Russian tanks near Wismar.

In Stockholm a responsible diplomat said developments clearing up the situation regarding the German garrisons holding out in Denmark and Norway "might occur today." He offered no details, but emphasized that the situation was so fluid a break might come at any moment.

Grand Admiral Karl Doenitz, Germany's new Fuehrer, has declared Prague a "hospital city," the Germans said. That announcement indicated that the Czechoslovak capital and the largest Nazi-held city in the south would not be defended.

All fighting in northern Italy and western Austria has ceased under the unconditional surrender agreement accepted by German Gen. Heinrich von Vietinghoff-Scheel.

WAR BRIEFS

Colombo, Ceylon, May 3 (AP)— British troops have entered the Burmese capital of Rangoon, a special communique from Allied south-east Asia command headquarters announced today.

Headquarters disclosed yesterday that British forces had been landed on both banks of the Rangoon river after the way had been prepared by an airborne operation.

Other British forces driving down on Rangoon overland from the north last were reported within 35 miles of the city.

Moscow, May 3 (AP)—Thousands of dirty and unshaven Germans shuffled through the Brandenburg gate under the pillars of victory in fallen Berlin today to lay down their arms where goosestepping Prussians formerly paraded their triumphs.

The hush of a dead nation lay over the smoking, broken capital, interrupted only by occasional explosions in the ruins.

There was no further information on the fate of Hitler or his propaganda minister, Paul Joseph Goebbels, who were said by Goebbels' deputy to have committed suicide when their dream of Berlin as the capital of the world collapsed about them. But the Russians were checking the story.

Rome, May 3 (AP)—With fighting ended in northern Italy, New (Please Turn to Page 2)

The surrender yesterday, which yielded nearly 1,000,000 German and Italian Fascist troops, opened the mountainous heart of the Nazis' shrinking Alpine redoubt, now about to be split by a junction of U.S. Third army troops with the Russians around the Austrian city of Linz.

100,000 Prisoners in Berlin
With the loss of Berlin, Hamburg, Luebeck and Rostock, the only large German cities remaining under the swastika were Breslau, Dresden, Chemnitz and Kiel. At Luebeck, the British were 33 miles from Kiel and 85 miles from the Danish frontier.

In Berlin the toll of sullen German prisoners taken by the Russians reached approximately 100,000.

Berlin, the fourth largest city in the world with a peacetime population of 4,335,000, surrendered yesterday to troops of the First White Russian and First Ukrainian armies after 12 days fighting.

There was no further word from the fallen Reich capital on the fate of Adolf Hitler, but the belief grew in Moscow that his body might turn up. By a captive Nazi's account Hitler, Propaganda Minister Paul Goebbels and Chief of Staff Gen. Hans Krebs committed suicide.

Yank Armies Drive On
Denmark and Norway were isolated by the British-Russian junction near Wismar, 29 miles southwest of captured Rostock. The Germans in the north were surrendering in wholesale lots. The Luxembourg radio, which sometimes speaks with authority, said German rule in Denmark seemed to be nearing its end.

Despite the surrender in northern Italy and western Austria, Gen. Eisenhower kept the American Third and Seventh armies and the French First army driving into the enemy's southern pocket.

Dominating the Inn river on a 66-mile front, Gen. Patton's Third army had crossed that wide tributary of the Danube at half a dozen places and had completely occupied Braunau, the birthplace of Hitler.

The Third army's 90th division crossed into Czechoslovakia near Stary Pastrekov and advanced to within 29 miles of Pilsen and its Skoda munitions works, the only large armament center left to the Germans.

17 Miles to Italy
The people of Braunau, an Austrian village of 5,000, showered flowers on the Americans and exhibited little sorrow over the fate of Hitler. They seemed relieved that the war was over for them.

A Seventh Army column had appeared to within 17 miles of the Italian border. Americans were eight miles west of Innsbruck.

At the upper end of the Adriatic New Zealand troops occupied the Italian city of Trieste.

SCHOOL PLANS FOR 7TH BOND DRIVE LISTED

Plans for county school participation in the Seventh War Loan drive were outlined in a letter mailed today to all county school administrators and teachers by Dr. Robert A. Bream, assistant county superintendent of schools and education chairman of the County War Finance committee.

The same general plan of awards for pupils will be followed this time as was used in the Sixth War Loan drive, and all sales made between April 9 and July 7 will be counted for record. However, Doctor Bream stressed the fact that most if not all schools will be closed by June 1, and said "an intensive drive" should be made during the month of May.

"Let us make a mighty effort to put across this Seventh War Loan drive before the close of school," he said. "Even though it is the end of the school year with all the pressure that means upon both teachers and pupils, we must ask everyone connected with the schools to buy as many bonds and stamps as possible between now and the close of school."

Schedule Of Awards
Doctor Bream listed the following schedule of awards for pupils:

Elementary school pupils who buy or sell any type of bond will be enrolled in the Junior Brigade and their names will be published as they are reported to the education chairman at his office at the court house. A United States Treasury citation will be awarded to any pupil, elementary or high school, who sells 10 or more bonds to 10 or more persons.

All scouts from the district have been invited to attend by Haines who will provide all of the food for the entire group for the four days, and a large part of the entertainment. Haines has engaged a circus and rodeo troop to appear one night during the encampment.

Given Ponchos
In addition to a discussion of plans for the round-up, several other announcements concerning the district were made. Dr. Fred Tilberg, district chairman, who presided at the meeting, disclosed that the Blue Ridge Rubber company at Littlestown, had donated to the Black Walnut district, 175 army ponchos which had been declared defective by government inspectors.

After a discussion by the group, it was moved that approximately 35 of the ponchos should be allotted to the newly organized scout troop at the Paradise protectorcy so as to provide one for each boy and the remainder of the lot be divided equally among the 10 troops in the Black Walnut district.

Dr. W. C. Robinson, Former Local Pastor, Was Preacher At Roosevelt's Last Service

Current issues of several religious periodicals have devoted special articles to the last church service attended by the late President Roosevelt and those accounts disclose circumstances of special interest to many Gettysburgians for the preacher at Warm Springs that Sunday was the Rev. Dr. William Childs Robinson.

Doctor Robinson, who served his first and only pastorate in the Gettysburg Presbyterian church, now is professor of historical theology at the Columbia Theological seminary of the Presbyterian Church, U. S., at Decatur, Ga. Doctor Robinson left Gettysburg about 20 years ago to accept the seminary faculty position.

An interesting sidelight on the Easter service is the fact that a letter postmarked the day the late president died was received by Dr. Robinson from Mr. Roosevelt thanking the minister for a book he had sent the chief executive quoting a poem he had used in his sermon at Warm Springs Easter morning.

NAZI CAPITAL SURRENDERS TO RUSS ARMIES

London, May 3 (AP)—Berlin, the Nazi capital and fourth largest city of the world surrendered yesterday to troops of two Russian armies, and 70,000 of the city's defenders gave up the fight which had raged for 12 deadly days through streets and subways.

The city fell at 3 p. m. to troops of the First White Russian and First Ukrainian armies, Premier Stalin announced in an order of the day. He disclosed also that Russian forces had destroyed the German Ninth Army, trapped southeast of Berlin, killing 60,000 men and capturing 120,000, and had overrun the last of Germany's big Baltic ports, Rostock and Warnemunde.

In Moscow, the fall of Berlin was celebrated with an official salute of 24 salvoes from 324 cannon. The long-awaited victory was hailed by Russians in the streets with dancing, shouting and general hilarity. Moscow dispatches said belief was evident everywhere in the capital that the end of the war could be expected at any time.

Zhukov and Konev There

The victorious Russian armies, headed by Marshals G. K. Zhukov and Ivan S. Konev, entered Berlin on April 21, after jumping across the Oder. They swarmed into the 341-square-mile city, already battered from American and British air raids, and laid it low in 12 days of some of the bitterest street fighting in history. It was not known how many of the German capital's peacetime population of 4,335,000 persons remained in the city at the time of its fall.

The fall of Berlin came as other Soviet armies to the south were swinging westward through Czechoslovakia towards Prague and the western Allies in a drive to shred another developing pocket of Nazi resistance.

The Second White Russian push along the Baltic coast placed Soviet forces but 29 miles from the British, who captured the Baltic ports of Luebeck and Wismar yesterday.

North of Berlin, only a twisting, virtually indefensible strip on the Mecklenburg plain remained to the Germans.

A wide and solid linkup of the eastern and western Allies all the way north to the Baltic sea appeared imminent.

that the district's complete set of merit badge pamphlets now can be obtained for study by scouts at his office on the second floor of the post office building. The merit badge books formerly had been kept at the office of the county superintendent of schools at the court house, but because the business hours of that office closely paralleled those of the schools, the boys were not able to secure the books.

SCHOOLS WILL MARK V-E DAY

County Superintendent of Schools J. Floyd Slaybaugh announced today that the schools of the county will prepare a special program and may take a full-day holiday in celebration of V-E day should that event occur before the close of the present term.

In a letter to all principals and teachers in the county public schools, Professor Slaybaugh today advised that such a program should be arranged for the celebration.

"Schools should remain in session until noon of the next day after the declaration and then the planned programs should be held to celebrate the event, after which schools may be closed for the day and the full attendance be recorded," he said in the letter.

"Principals and teachers will keep busy drivers informed so that if and when V-E day is declared they will be on hand to transport pupils to their respective homes following the appropriate exercises," the letter continued.

The exercises should be observed the next day following the declaration, Professor Slaybaugh said, because of the fact that many of the county schools are without telephones and possibly will not hear of the announcement until after the close of school on that day.

The Cuppers

Have a Dream Come True

Dee and Jane Cuppers used to say that as soon as the children had flown the roost, they were going off together on a second honeymoon... take a trip... or rent an apartment in the city.

So after little Sue got married, I stopped in to say goodbye. Dee was sitting in his favorite chair before the fire, sipping a mellow glass of beer. And Jane was busy with her knitting, just as always. They looked about as restless as the tabby cat on the hearth.

"Jane and I figured," Dee explained, "that you couldn't beat being at home alone together, with our own things—talking and reading—enjoying my glass of beer, and Jane her buttermilk—living and letting live. I guess you can't beat home!"

From where I sit, Dee's had a better dream come true—the dream of peace and tolerance and understanding that we all are fighting for, and praying for, today.

TRUMAN IS FAST BECOMING 'HOT NEWS' SOURCE

By ERNEST B. VACCARO
Washington, May 3 (AP)—Topped by his confirmation of Adolf Hitler's death, a rapid series of disclosures enhanced President Truman's reputation today as a source of "hot copy."

His flat affirmation of the German Fuehrer's passing came near the close of a day in which he re-established the White House as a No. 1 news front.

Mr. Truman already had launched a multi-billion dollar economy drive, announced the surrender of German armies in Italy and opened his second regular news conference by reading off three major appointments when reporters asked him if he cared to comment "on the death of Hitler, reported, or Mussolini."

The Day's News

Well, he replied, the two principal war criminals will not have to come to trial and he was very happy that they were out of the way.

A flat yes was his answer to a question whether he knew of Hitler's death officially, although he said he did not know how he died.

He did not have details, Mr. Truman explained, adding that confirmation was based on the best authority possible to obtain at this time.

While the Hitler revelation topped them all, the President also told his news conference:

1. That Postmaster General Frank C. Walker has resigned effective June 30 and Democratic National Chairman Robert E. Hannegan would succeed him.

2. That he was reappointing Chairman David E. Lilienthal as chairman of the Tennessee valley authority.

3. That Supreme Court Justice Robert H. Jackson would serve as chief counsel for the United States in the prosecution of war criminals.

Other Top Topics

Mr. Truman then disclosed that he had been in communication with Marshal Stalin on the tangled Polish controversy since talking with Soviet Foreign Commissar Molotov at the White House.

Turning from this he reiterated stout opposition to any revision of the Little Steel wage formula, approved of past administration policy in dealing with the Montgomery Ward seizure case and disclosed that he was studying tax revision along with Treasury Secretary Morgenthau.

The Chief Executive said at the same time that further reductions in war agency expenditures are in store but that details are yet to be worked out. He added he would do everything he could to keep men at work after the war.

Coal Production Losses Mounting

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., May 3 (AP)—Production losses in the Pennsylvania anthracite coal region mounted today as 72,000 workers at 231 operations went into the third day of their work stoppage.

Owen Williams, regional solid fuels administration director, said 190,000 tons of anthracite had been lost in the first two days of the work stoppage.

Many miners in the hard coal section predicted there would be no resumption of work during the present week irrespective of what develops in New York where United Mine Workers representatives and mine operators are deadlocked in contract negotiations.

The miners failed to report to their jobs after expiration of their old contract Monday midnight.

School Legislation Compromise Hinted

Harrisburg, May 3 (AP)—Possibility of a compromise on cost-increasing school legislation was hinted today in the General Assembly.

Opposition to changes in the House-approved program boosting teachers' salaries and state subsidies was known to have developed in the Senate Republican caucus but members declined to discuss the matter openly.

However, GOP Leader Weldon B. Heyburn for two nights has put off consideration of the measure while efforts to reach an agreement were being made behind the scenes.

Instances of Democratic members for action led to Hayburn assuring the measure will be called up for consideration today.

Expect C - D Will Continue In State

Harrisburg, May 3 (AP)—Continuation of Pennsylvania's civilian defense setup in some form seemed assured today despite abandonment of the federal system.

Governor Martin indicated retention at a news conference but left final decision to the Civilian Defense Council which he will assemble May 22.

A statement from Council Director Dr. Ralph Cooper Hutchison said abandonment of the U. S. office of Civilian Defense "has no significance for Pennsylvania" since the state organization was created by the legislature "and is in no way dependent on the federal government."

COINCIDENCE IN HITLER'S DEATH

Pittsburgh, May 3 (AP)—Adolf Hitler's death May 1 seemed a curious coincidence to many Pittsburghers who remembered another May 1, five years before, when the late Col. Samuel Harden Church, then president of Carnegie Institute of Technology, offered a $1,000,000 reward for Hitler's capture.

The Carnegie president said the offer was made on behalf of 50 Pittsburgh citizens, some of them women. It specified that the capture of Hitler "alive, unwounded and unhurt and his delivery x x x for trial before a high court of justice for his crimes against the peace and dignity of the world."

This offer, made in 1940 when America and Germany were at peace, stirred up a tempest of hot-tempered criticism and for a time a police guard was posted at Col. Church's home.

When the offer was withdrawn at the end of a month, however, 82-year-old Col. Church asserted letters and telegrams he had received indicated 99 per cent of America was with him.

Hatred of Hitler was not new to Col. Church. As early as 1938, he publicly castigated the German Fuehrer as a "knave," a "ferocious animal" and the "most malevolent and dangerous power on the face of the earth."

BRUNNER BILL PASSES AT LAST

Harrisburg, May 3 (AP)—The celebrated Brunner stream cleanup bill reached the end of its long legislative train today.

The final draft drew thumping House approval 178-17 Senate Leader Weldon B. Heyburn promised similar passage in his branch immediately.

The action is on a joint House-Senate committee report resolving differences which developed between the two branches during four months of controversy over the measure.

Keystone of Governor Martin's anti-pollution drive, the often-revamped plan bans dumping of anthracite silt into streams, prohibits release of bituminous mine acid waste into clean waters and hikes penalties for illegal discharge of all industrial refuse.

Only opposition in the House vote came from the anthracite district. However, seven fewer negative votes were recorded than on initial passage.

Sponsor Charles H. Brunner, (R-Montgomery), presented a statement of legislative intent to help the justice department in event of a

MARTIN BILL IS PERILED BY GOP

Harrisburg, May 3 (AP)—Failure of the House Republican leadership to quell an uprising within its own ranks threatened to upset Governor Martin's compensation program today.

A coalition of Democrats and Republicans was conceded a good chance of winning a floor fight to boost maximum unemployment and workmen's compensation and occupational disease benefits above the $20 weekly recommended by Martin.

Another conflict developed with Senate passage 42-5 of legislation reenacting the one-cent emergency gasoline tax and giving only $17,000,000 of the $20,000,000 biennial proceeds to municipalities for road work.

The measure passed the House with a proviso that all receipts go to municipalities but was revamped by a Senate committee. Representatives said they will fight to strike out the Senate changes.

The compensation controversy shifted to the House floor after a two-hour Republican caucus yesterday in which administration lieutenants sought in vain to end dissatisfaction.

Success With Snapdragons

Snapdragons were among the favorite flowers in old-fashioned gardens. But several years ago rust began ravaging plants and almost drove this fine ornamental from the American scene. In recent years, however, nurseries have developed several good resistant strains and growers have learned more about the disease, hence snapdragons are coming back into favor even more desirable for their long absence.

This flower is perennial or biennial in habits, but most growers treat it as an annual because it produces blooms every year from spring-sown seed. Therefore, seed should be sown as soon as frost dangers are past, preferably where the plants are to grow, although extra early plants may be started in plant bands or individual pots earlier in the season, preferably in a sunny coldframe.

It is wise to move snapdragons to a new site each spring and burn all refuse before winter in order to reduce disease dangers, and allow at least three years to elapse before they are grown on the original site again.

Way To Control Rust

A well drained loam is advised, with some thoroughly rotted and finely pulverized manure worked into the soil in advance of planting time. Plenty of moisture is needed throughout the long flowering season, which warrants the inclusion of organic matter in the lower stratum of loam.

Sow seed this week for the earliest blooms, with later sowings to provide a succession of flowers until fall frosts come. Blooms appear in 10 to 12 weeks after sowing seed.

If individual plants or groups show rust infection, spray them with 3-4-50 Bordeaux mixture at weekly intervals any time before flower buds open. And if the outbreak is severe, dust freely with superfine dusting sulphur each week midway between Bordeaux applications.

If the soil is known to contain rust organisms by the fact that plants were infected there the previous year and it is necessary to plant snapdragons in the same place, work a half-and-half mixture of hydrated lime and fine sulphur into the top soil 2 to 4 weeks before planting at the rate of 2 pounds to 100 square feet.

Dry weather, particularly after flower stalks appear, hampers snapdragon vigor. If dry weather arrives at this stage or even earlier, mulch the plants with fine grass clippings or similar vegetation and soak the soil to a depth of at least 4 inches once a week. Do not sprinkle the plants. The chief purpose of cultivation is to keep weeds removed. Mulches, of course, usually choke weeds out.

Its Botanical Name

The botanical name of snapdragons is Antirrhinum and the listing is usually so designated in most catalogues.

Among newer strains are many types of flower as well as shades ranging from white and yellow to deep scarlet. Here is an excellent ornamental for the taller border. Its long spikes of bloom are attractive and rank high as the better flowers for cutting.

Insects seldom bother snapdragons, although the cyclamen midge

Freezes Ruined Northeast Fruit

Harrisburg, May 3 (AP)—All northeast Pennsylvania fruit crops are near failures because of hard freezes April 23, the state agriculture department reported. Other areas suffered less damage.

Cherries are short, said the federal-state crop reporting service in a survey for the week ending May 1, with peaches fair and apples fair but spotty in commercial growing areas.

Moderate snows were reported in some mountain and northern sections during the period. Vegetation did not thrive and farm work was further delayed.

"Asparagus marketings were reduced because of frost damage," said the reporting service. "Freezes hurt many home and commercial vegetable gardens and early straw-is reported severe in New England and may eventually be brought farther south.

Beginners should purchase seed from reliable dealers who can guarantee rust-resistant strains. The first outdoor sowing should be made at once; the last should be made in late June.

SCHENLEY DISTILLERS CORP., NEW YORK

Travelog

Since earliest records, man has been a partaker of alcoholic beverages made from fruits or grains, or from other forms of vegetable matter . . . all products of nature. And, it seems that a nation's alcoholic beverage is usually made from products which it raises in greatest abundance.

In the Scandinavian countries, the national beverage is AQUALIT, made from grain or from potatoes. Since the distillation is neutral in taste, it is flavored with caraway seeds. It has plenty of power.

And then, to the East, lies Russia, the home of amazingly intrepid soldiers, and equally "intrepid" vodka. My impression was that it too was made from potatoes, but I find that it is made from wheat, because Russia is, normally, one of the world's largest producers of that grain; wheat is cheaper. Their vodka is usually consumed at a considerably higher proof than the alcoholic beverages of peoples living to the West of them. The Russians can take it. Perhaps the vodka has something to do with it. It seems, with few exceptions, that the colder the climate, the "hotter" the liquor. AQUALIT is neutral in taste; no flavoring is added, and it, like AQUALIT, is not aged.

Neighboring our country, we find rum the prevailing drink in the West Indies. Rum, an alcoholic distillate from the fermented juice of sugar cane, or molasses, has a distinctive flavor and is aged.

In our own country, our earliest alcoholic distillation was made from corn or maize. This grain, you will recall, was introduced by the Indians to the English colonists. And later, when German settlers came to Pennsylvania, their whiskey was made from surplus rye. So our American whiskeys are known as BOURBON, and RYE. Since Canadians are very much the same as we, their whiskeys are quite similar—with a leaning toward RYE.

Now, we go South of the Rio Grande, to Mexico, and there we find a completely different raw material used in making Mexico's national alcoholic drink—TEQUILA. It is inexpensive, and possesses a fiery potency. It is as sharp as the thorns on a cactus plant, and TEQUILA is actually made from a variety of cactus—same family as the century plant. This plant bursts into bloom when it is three years old, at which time there is a lot of sap in the base. This sap is tapped, and it ferments in about ten days. The resultant product is called PULQUE. It has a heavy flavor and looks like sour milk. TEQUILA is made by distilling PULQUE.

And so ends our little travelog. Maybe we will have another one some day soon. We mustn't travel too much these days.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

Local Man at Lions Confab: William G. Weaver, Carlisle street, who represented the Gettysburg den of Lions at the annual state convention of the organization at Philadelphia last week, returned home Sunday.

County Pastor Given Welcome: A largely attended reception was tendered the Rev. George Sheffer and family of New Oxford, in the Sunday school room of the church Thursday evening by the members of the Ladies' Aid of the First Lutheran congregation, of which Mr. Sheffer recently became pastor.

Birth Announcement: Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Dunkinson, Hanover, announce the birth of a baby boy at the West Side Sanitarium, York, Monday.

Build New Home for Lower Firm: The John C. Lower company, wholesale grocers now located in several rooms in the Adams County Cold Storage company, will occupy new quarters after the first of July. Work has been started on the erection of a two-story cement block building on Franklin street, adjoining the Reading railroad, having office facilities and elevator service from basement to the second floor.

Pretty Wedding Is Solemnized: A pretty wedding was solemnized at the United Brethren church parsonage, Guernsey, Saturday evening, when Miss Erma Mae Slaybaugh, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Crist Slaybaugh, became the bride of Cyrus James Keefer, Table Rock. The Rev. F. M. Burkett officiated.

Mr. and Mrs. Keefer are residing at the home of the former's parents for the present.

Gen. Mitchell Now a Colonel: Washington, April 28—Within a few hours after he had surrendered the stars which for almost seven years had marked him a brigadier-general, Assistant Chief of the Army Air Service Colonel Mitchell appeared Monday before a group of officers who had gathered to bid him farewell and took up anew his fight for a unified air service.

While he had found it impossible to do anything to promote the air service through the war and navy departments, Colonel Mitchell said he would continue his efforts "before the people and the congress." He made it plain that he would continue his fight regardless of whether he was a general or an officer of lower rank, whether he was in Washington or Texas.

Resigns Position: Miss Jeanne Miller, Baltimore street, has resigned her position in the office of Millard B. Simmons, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, and was succeeded Monday morning by Miss Otilia Kissinger, Baltimore street. Miss Miller has accepted a position in the office of The Times.

Hindenburg Is Election Victor (By Associated Press) Berlin, April 2.—Field Marshal Von Hindenburg's front porch campaign conducted from his home in Hanover, has been successful and next week he will be conducted into office as the first popularly elected President of Germany.

The first president, the late Frederick Ebert, was named by the National Assembly immediately after the revolution which established the Republic, but Von Hindenburg was chosen by direct vote of the people.

Famous Lincoln Railroad Coach to Be Located on Battlefield: The famous railroad coach that Abraham Lincoln rode in from Washington to Gettysburg, at the time he delivered his immortal Gettysburg address, and in which he is said to have written his notes for the address, will be located in a specially constructed building on the battlefield here, according to an announcement made by Howard C. Mitinger, manager of the Hoffman Hotel, and district consul of the Pennsylvania Lincoln Highway association.

This information was contained in a letter from M. C. Byers, president of the Western Maryland company, Baltimore, to Howard C. Mitinger.

Catchy Plot in High Play: "Once in a Blue Moon," a musical romance, is the attraction for the opening night of music week in Gettysburg on Monday at the Lincoln Way Theatre. The musical is presented by the high school students under the supervision of Miss Lucille Henry.

OWN V-E DAY
MAY BE CHOSEN
BY HISTORIANS

By J. M. ROBERTS, JR.
(Substituting for DeWitt MacKenzie)

The impulse this morning is to write "this is V-E Day." It would be, if Allied men were not still fighting and dying in the pockets which the last fanatical Germans can't hold but refuse to surrender completely. Or it would be if V-E Day had not already passed.

Historians will argue that V-E Day was the day in 1940 that Hitler failed to invade England, or the day he beat himself by invading Russia, the day he was turned back at Stalingrad or El Alamein, or the day he failed to throw the Allies off the Normandy beaches.

Whatever the verdict, the day when Germany changed her military policy, stopped fighting for her centers and began to declare them open cities, will stand as a great climax of the war. We are down to the mop-up, and it begins to look as though the final days of guerrilla warfare may not be so extensive or so exasperating as once expected.

Without Hamburg, Prague, Munich, Berlin, Stettin, Vienna, Bremen or any important hedgehog left, only heaven knows why any Germans keep fighting. Probably only on mad momentum—plus the fact that they haven't arrived yet at all the army headquarters to accept all the surrenders, that all the Nazi commanders haven't had the opportunity for their last little "honor satisfying" battle to save them from the "ignominy" of surrendering without firing a shot.

No Moral Debate

Regardless of history's decision on just when Germany lost the war militarily, there will be little debate on moral grounds. Germany lost the war before she began it, by arraying against herself the freedom-loving, right thinking people of the globe.

Nowhere is this so well demonstrated as in Italy, where the erstwhile Hitlerites have just surrendered.

Hardly a nation but has been represented there, many of them by fully organized armies—Poles, Hindus and Moslems from India, Jews, Americans, Britons, Canadians, New Zealanders, Australians, Yugoslavs, French, Negroes from New Orleans and Negroes from Africa, Japanese from Hawaii, and the first important expeditionary force ever sent across the seas from Latin-America, the Brazilians; Italians themselves since they escaped from their Fascist rulers.

The German idea arrayed all these, and more, against itself. The recent sweep of events has been so great as to approach confusion. The end of resistance in Holland, Denmark, Norway and the remaining continental pockets seems merely a matter of arrangements. We are in the middle of the greatest military surrender in all history. The curtain falls on a Germany, which is not brave, but merely disgusting, in its final tail-lashings.

Murdered Man's Body Is Identified

St. Augustine, Fla., May 3 (AP)—The family of Charles H. Montgomery said today it was satisfied that the body of a middle-aged man found slain here with a bullet through the head was that of the millionaire Pennsylvania lumberman, mysteriously missing since April 21.

Positive identification awaited the arrival here of R. N. Haines, Grove City, Pa., official of Montgomery's supply company. Haines said in Atlanta, Ga., where he went to direct the search for his 56-year-old missing employer, there was "little doubt" as to the identity of the body.

The body was found Saturday dumped under a bridge on an isolated dirt road. It was clad in a shirt, tie and a vest, the inside of which bore the inked lettering, "C. H. Montgomery."

EXPECT INDICTMENTS

Pittsburgh, May 3 (AP)—Indictments will result from the federal grand jury black market probe now in progress and some of them will be returned this week, W. Wendell Stanton, assistant U. S. Attorney, said last night.

Cor. 15 and from three chapters in the Epistle to the Hebrews. The anthems, sung by a choir made up of fellow victims of polio, were equally familiar: "In Joseph's Lovely Garden," and Stainer's "God So Loved the World."

"In the pulpit that Easter morning stood William C. Robinson. He preached what in many respects was a theological sermon on the theme, "God Incarnate for Suffering Men." But it was a sermon designed to bring comfort and strength, with its presentation of Christ as tasting death for every man that he might deliver all from the fear of death.

"The Pale Horse at the Door" "As he reached that portion of his message the preacher began to quote "The Stirrup Cup," a poem by John Hay, Lincoln's private secretary who later became one of our greatest secretaries of state:

"My short and happy day is done, The long and lonely night goes on;

And at my door the pale horse stands To bear me forth to unknown lands."

"Then came a verse added by the famous Confederate artillery commander, General E. P. Alexander:

"But storm and gloom and mystery Shall only nerve my courage high; Who through life's scenes hath borne his part May face its close with tranquil heart."

"And then, speaking directly to the President, the minister quoted another verse added by the Rev. Powers Smith, who, in the War Between the States, rode as an aide-de-camp to Stonewall Jackson:

"The pale horse stands and will not bide, The night has come and I must ride. But not alone to unknown lands,

But not alone to unknown lands,

But not alone to unknown lands,

But not alone to unknown lands,

But not alone to unknown lands,

But not alone to unknown lands,

But not alone to unknown lands,

But not alone to unknown lands,

But not alone to unknown lands,

But not alone to unknown lands,

But not alone to unknown lands,

But not alone to unknown lands,

But not alone to unknown lands,

But not alone to unknown lands,

But not alone to unknown lands,

But not alone to unknown lands,

But not alone to unknown lands,

But not alone to unknown lands,

But not alone to unknown lands,

But not alone to unknown lands,

But not alone to unknown lands,

But not alone to unknown lands,

But not alone to unknown lands,

But not alone to unknown lands,

But not alone to unknown lands,

But not alone to unknown lands,

But not alone to unknown lands,

But not alone to unknown lands,

But not alone to unknown lands,

But not alone to unknown lands,

But not alone to unknown lands,

But not alone to unknown lands,

But not alone to unknown lands,

But not alone to unknown lands,

But not alone to unknown lands,

But not alone to unknown lands,

My Friend goes with me holding hands."

Gold Star Mother's Poem

"As the sermon closed, Dr. Robinson told of a mother whose son went down with the submarine S-26 off Panama. When a memorial service was held for this lad on Easter three years ago at the Old First Church in Decatur, his mother wrote:

"God has given me a guiding light, A star called Faith, That substance of things hoped for,

That evidence of things not seen, And now within me peace and joy are born,

For some day there shall come a resurrection morn And I shall see again and know my son."

"After the service was over, the minister mailed the President a copy of the booklet in which the mother's poem is quoted. Later he received a letter, signed in the handwriting familiar to all Americans, "Franklin D. Roosevelt." The letter spoke of the "grand service" held that Easter Sunday morning, and expressed thanks for having "in permanent form that very appropriate poem which you embodied in your Easter sermon." The sheet of paper bore the address, "The White House, Washington," but the letter was postmarked, "Warm Springs, Georgia, April 12, 8:30 a. m., 1945."

Dr. Robinson's Opportunity

In an article in the April 28 issue of The Presbyterian, written by Dr. Robinson about the Easter service the President attended, the former Gettysburg pastor writes in part as follows:

"It has been my privilege to preach at Warm Springs several

Eastern, but this is the only time I have had the President in the congregation. When the Chief Magistrate's call came there were strong inward 'tugs' to help by serving as a chap

BROWNS HOIST
FLAG; INDIANS
WIN IN 13TH

By JACK HAND
(Associated Press Sports Writer)
Al Benton appeared today the answer to Steve O'Neill's search for depth in his Detroit pitching staff as a No. 3 man behind Dizzy Trout and Hal Newhouse.

Over a 27-inning stretch in three complete games since the season opened, the ex-sailor had boosted himself into select unbeaten company by allowing a total of only two runs and 10 hits.

Chicago was his latest victim yesterday, 2-1, following a 1-0 shutout of St. Louis and a 5-1 decision over Cleveland.

Benton, who enlisted in the Navy after the 1942 season, received a medical discharge last Nov. 15. So far he has matched Trout's 3-0 win record and overshadowed Newhouse's one decision in three tries.

St. Louis, off to a disappointingly slow start in defense of their title, dropped a tough 13-inning contest to Cleveland last night, 2-1, after hoisting their first American league flag.

Yanks Beat A's
It was the first night game of the season in the majors and the first triumph for Allie Reynolds, who went all the way, besting Bob Muncie who relieved Nels Potter in the 13th. Eddie Carnett's single scored Mike Rocco with the winning run.

Russ Christopher's mastery over the New York Yankees, effective since Sept. 14, 1943, ended as rookie Al Gettel hurled Joe McCarthy's gang to a 6-4 verdict over the Athletics for his first major league victory. The Yanks tied the White Sox for the lead by the triumph.

Jim Wilson, another freshman up from Louisville, earned his first big time decision by shutting out Washington, 4-0, for Boston.

Bill Voelke was accorded rough treatment in Philadelphia where he was clubbed from the hill after blowing a 7-run lead but Ace Adams rescued him to save the New York Giants' 9-8 edge. Johnny Rucker ran his hitting streak to 13 games with four singles, driving home four runs and stealing a base.

Cards, Pirates Split
St. Louis and Pittsburgh met for the first time in a doubleheader and the honors were all even. Harry Brecheen hurled the Red Birds to a 4-2 edge over Rip Sewell in the opener, but the Bucs routed Blux Donnelly and three others for an 11-1 breeze behind Max Butcher in the second.

Nate Andrews outbowed rookie Vic Lombardi to give the Boston Braves a 3-1 nod over Brooklyn. The Cincinnati Chicago tilt was washed out.

P.S.—Ernie Lombardi beat out another bunt!

Eastern Loop Clubs
Win In Big Innings

(By The Associated Press)
Baseball's jackpot, the big inning, paid off four times in the Eastern league's inaugural program of 1945. It was the same story all through yesterday's opening bill. The Albany Senators dented the plate five times in the eighth to shade Hartford's 1944 pennant-winning laurels, 6-4. Utica's Blue Sox scored six in the fifth and edged out the Binghamton Triplets, Governor's Cup holders, 14-13.

Scranton's Miners gathered all their runs in the fifth for a 4-2 victory over Wilkes-Barre, and in the only night game the Williamsport Grays counted six times in the second and downed the Elmira Pioneers 8-5.

Sports Roundup
By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.
New York, May 3 (AP) — It sounded very simple the other day when Commissioner-elect Happy Chandler said that baseball should locate leagues in the vicinity of government hospitals (to provide entertainment for wounded men) and in high schools and colleges. But, somehow, we wonder if Happy realizes what a task that would be. Presumably he means locating professional leagues near hospitals, since the commissioner's job doesn't deal with amateur baseball, and a committee has been studying possible realignment of leagues for over a year now without reaching any conclusion. As for the schools and colleges, they'd help from professional ball—on their own terms—and the first demand is that the pros let their players alone until they graduate. . . high school baseball already is on the upgrade, due to the encouragement received from organized ball. But how is Chandler going to organize leagues in schools and colleges when some state associations still call a player ineligible for little more than shaking hands with a scout?

ALL AT SEA
The American Merchant Marine Institute reports that out of some 60 United Nations ships given the names of famous race horses, Cavalade, War Admiral, Gallant Fox, Equipoise and Reigh Count have been sunk. . . which puts them in the same class with most horsemen, who have been sunk since the first of the year.

ONE-MINUTE SPORTS PAGE
The National Collegiate A. A. track meet will be a one-day (and night) affair this year because of Navy travel limitations. . . Red Schoendienst, the Cardinal rookie who hit a triple in his first major league game, started hitting his first day with three minor league clubs—Union City, Tenn., Lynchburg, Va., and Rochester, N. Y. When he failed to get a hit in his first game as a soldier last summer, he stole second, third and home instead. . . Sam Sneed was a left-handed golfer when he first started to play and his brother Curdy, pro at Maxwell Field, Ala., still swings from the port side.

The No. 1 war material need today is your waste paper. Salvage all waste paper.

Small Nations Attack All-Powerful World Council Plan For Future Security

MORE REGIONAL BASIS IS SOUGHT FOR PEACE PLAN

UNITED NATIONS TODAY

Commissions on general purposes of a world organization and on a general assembly meet to organize their work, 10:30 a. m., Pacific War Time.

Commissions on a security council and a judicial organization meet for same purpose, 3:30 p. m., Pacific War Time.

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER (Associated Press Diplomatic Editor)

San Francisco, May 3 (AP)—The Big Four plan for an all-powerful world council to guard future peace today was attacked by several nations at the United Nations Conference. They want to put peace-keeping on a more regional basis.

The issue, growing in importance as the work of the Conference speeds up, appears certain to impose a severe test of American leadership.

The United States is seeking both to promote the creation of a world-wide security system and to fit into it such regional organizations as the Pan-American system without allowing the development of regional blocks.

Have Avoided Showdown

So far the American delegation under Secretary of State Stettinius has avoided a showdown among its own members on the sort of formula it may support. The 16 American amendments to the Dumbarton Oaks plan, which are to be announced tomorrow, do not cover the regional issue.

As proposals poured in for reshaping the Dumbarton Oaks proposals on the power of the security council to use force, there were these other developments in this bustling conference city:

1. Stettinius started a drive to keep as many foreign ministers as possible here throughout the conference despite the pressure of their war-end problems at home. Russian Foreign Commissar Molotov plans to leave in a few days; British Foreign Secretary Eden plans to stay at least another week.

2. Molotov, Eden and Stettinius conferred yesterday on Poland, trying to clear the way for reorganization of the Warsaw government.

3. The American delegation decided that Argentina should get no official position at the conference.

Work On Amendments

4. Foreign Minister Georges Bidault of France told a news conference his government could accept the principle of international military bases but would never surrender any territory.

5. Leaders of several middle and small power delegations said they were unwilling to turn over complete control of their military forces to a security council in which they had no voice.

6. The British completed a plan for international trusteeships over ex-enemy territories which opposes the United States plan for strategic trusteeships to cover military bases. The American proposal would let this country keep exclusive control over key islands captured from Japan.

Conference routine today was limited to organization meetings of commissions and committee. Their job is to work over the scores of amendments that have been proposed to the Dumbarton Oaks plan written by the United States, Britain, Russia and China at Washington last fall.

Leaves From Diary Of War Correspondent

With the U. S. First Army in Germany, April 30 (AP)—Two American trucks came red balling down the dark highway, wheeling at high speed as all Army drivers love to drive on traffic-empty roads.

Hidden by the night, a strong steel cable was stretched across the highway between two stout trees along a lonely forest stretch.

A second before his truck struck the cable, the leading driver got a blurred glimpse of it and ducked. The cable sheared through the cab and the truck swerved off the road as the truck behind it stopped with screaming brakes.

As two soldiers climbed out of the second truck to assist the dazed driver of the first a group of Germans swarmed from the forest and raked them with machine pistol fire. Hurriedly the Germans searched the trucks, took what they wanted, then fled.

Two members of the truck crews were killed, one was wounded, and the fourth crawled unnoticed along a ditch and reported the trap to the nearest army post.

By the time an armed patrol returned to comb the forest the Germans had escaped.

This is just one of many incidents behind the lines indicating an increase in "Werewolf" and terrorist activity.

With the German nation falling into military ruin on a grand scale, Nazi underground movements are intensifying their sabotage efforts. They waylay and ambush lone jeeps. They halt and steal civilian motorcars. They attack and kill solitary soldiers who stray from camp. They distribute poisoned liquor and poisoned food. They cut wires and hide out with radios and send messages through the lines.

By day Germany seems to be a land of smiling, fair and friendly people. They scowl less at the Americans now. And since the Russians' approach, the average German has shown a desire to warm up to the Yanks, whom he has found to be pretty easy going on the whole, with little vindictiveness.

But at night Germany is a dark, sinister and fearful land. The soldiers hate to drive in it except in convoys.

Even more of a problem than the scatterbrained Hitler youths with their sabotage kits and packs of explosives, and the over publicized "Werewolf" organization, are German soldiers in civilian clothing who have filtered through our army lines with groups of displaced foreign workers.

Many of these soldiers carry arms and know how to use them. Many are angry and frustrated men looking for a chance to commit a spiteful deed merely to harass the army that whipped them. It will take weeks and months to find and imprison them all.

INTERPRETER IS BUSIEST PERSON AT CONFERENCE

By JAMES MARLOW

San Francisco, May 3 (AP)—There are 46 nations represented at this security conference. But the man doing the most talking is a red-headed Aztec. He's the official interpreter for the speakers at the fullness conference sessions.

He's Heriberto M. Sein, 46, a Mexican, brought up here specially for the occasion by his own state department.

He speaks English, French, Spanish, is familiar with Italian and Portuguese.

And—believe it or not—he doesn't know shorthand.

He just sits on the dais beside each speaker, bends his red head over his notebook, writes only key words, concentrates, and then delivers the speech in his own words.

Applause On Second Version

A speaker—say a Latin American—gets up. The Spanish starts to roll. The audience—jammed with Americans and the delegates of 46 nations—sits quietly.

Most of them can't understand a word. So there's no applause.

The speaker's eyes flash in the brilliant glare of the spotlights. He gestures. His voice rises, falls. The words come in a torrent.

Then the speaker pauses, steps back from the table and the loud-speaker microphones. Sein takes over. He stands up, looks at his notes.

He gestures with his arms, his hands, his head. His voice rises, becomes impassioned. Wow. The audience applauds.

A Redheaded Aztec
Sein's mother was English, his father a Mexican of Spanish descent. Because of that Indian ancestry, Sein, born in Mexico, calls himself a redheaded Aztec.

His mother taught him English. He had to speak it at the table. No—English, no eats.

His father taught him some French. Sein was graduated from the University of California, did post-graduate work at Columbia university in New York, studied at the Sorbonne in Paris, married a French girl.

Carnegie Steel Indictment Dropped

Pittsburgh, May 3 (AP)—An indictment charging the Carnegie-Illinois Steel Corp. and Lawrence S. Dahl, general superintendent of the firm's Irvin Works, with conspiracy to conceal facts from federal agencies, was dismissed in federal court yesterday.

The indictment was one of three returned against the steel corporation by a federal grand jury following an investigation of charges that its tests of steel plants were improperly made. The corporation was acquitted of the other two charges last May.

U. S. Attorney Charles F. Uhl, in asking dismissal of the remaining charge, gave no reason for the government's action.

Chapter 24

Christopher's voice sounded worried. He first told her he had made arrangements to have Bill Hanson spend all of his time in the fur department until she was able to return.

"He seemed delighted to do this for you," he explained. "I told him to telephone you several times during the day so you could keep track of the sale and send in your instructions." He hesitated a moment, then he asked anxiously, "I say, Brenda, Has Donohue telephoned you this morning?"

"The question surprised her. 'Why no. Why should he?'"

"I don't know. That's what worries me. But he's going to do more than 'phone you. He's coming over to the apartment to see you."

"But why, Christopher?" Brenda's voice showed instant concern.

"I don't want to see anyone this morning, least of all Donohue with his stupid questions. Must I see him?"

"I'm sorry, Brenda. I tried to stop him, but he's on his way to your apartment now. I wanted you to know he was coming. I don't like it either."

Brenda had an uneasy feeling that Christopher was as worried over the Lieutenant's unexpected call as she was.

"But I've told him over and over again all I know about the robbery." She almost wailed over the phone. "I just can't go into that again this morning. Is it really necessary, Christopher?"

"Yes, I'm afraid it is." His voice, low and urgent, came over the wire. "Please call me as soon as he leaves. When Donohue won't talk and starts pussyfooting around this way, he's got something on his mind."

Ten minutes later Lieutenant Donohue was standing in the center of Brenda's living room, with his cap tucked under his arm. He stared around the place in his most blatant official manner. His face was expressionless; his legs, encased in black leather puttees were spread well apart, giving him a particularly belligerent air.

"Good morning, Mrs. Blair," he spoke civilly enough. Hannah had answered his ring and taken him to the living room. "I'm sorry to hear of your husband's death."

Brenda bowed her head. For a moment she made no reply, then without looking at him she said:

"We'll dispense with everything but the reason for your call on me this morning, Lieutenant. I shall appreciate your being as brief as possible. I have no inclination to talk to anyone just now. I think you can understand that."

"I can," he answered abruptly, "and I am here because there are facts connected with your husband's death that must be cleared up at once. I understand he died under mysterious circumstances in this room last night. That's right, isn't it?"

There was no mistaking the menace in his voice. Brenda turned away from him and reached for a cigarette on the table beside her. She did not want him to see her shocked surprise at his question.

"My husband died of a heart attack last night. There was nothing 'mysterious' about his death," she answered in a level voice. She lit the cigarette and walked slowly toward a window across the room.

Before the Lieutenant could answer, the door bell rang again. Brenda heard voices in the outer hall. Then Donohue was at the door himself and a moment later Francine Norman and another police officer walked into the room.

Brenda's indignation flared up as she angrily faced the police officer. "Lieutenant Donohue, this is a totally unwarranted intrusion," she began, then stopped abruptly. Her eyes were following Francine who at once started sauntering around the room as she had done the night before. She knew the girl was stalling something far more serious than a bored inspection of her apartment.

The Lieutenants eyes followed hers. "Miss Norman made a statement at headquarters this morning that we cannot ignore." However, his voice was a shade more affable than when he first came in. "We'll appreciate your cooperation." He added crisply.

"Certainly, officer," Brenda answered stiffly, instantly realizing there was danger for her in this unexpected turn of affairs, and that it was a danger Francine Norman had deliberately pushed her into. The officer wasted no time in preliminaries. He took his notebook out of his pocket and motioned both girls to the sofa in front of him. The other officer stood by the door.

"How long have you known Mrs. Blair?" He asked Francine.

"I saw her for the first time last night."

"Mr. Blair's doctor said he died of a heart attack—why did you come to the police this morning and state that he had been murdered?"

A shiver of fear tingled along Brenda's spine. She gripped the arm of the sofa and waited. The officer evidently waited Francine to repeat her accusation in front of her.

"I think Tom Blair was poisoned. There were several people who wanted him out of the way. He was well enough the last time I saw him."

That was a slip. Francine knew it the moment the words were spoken. The Lieutenant shot his next question back at her with lightning speed.

"When was the last time you saw Mr. Blair alive?"

Francine hesitated. Everyone in the room caught her bewilderment and noticed her fumbling answer.

"Why—er—yesterday afternoon."

"What time?"

Pittsburgh Will Inspect New LST

Pittsburgh, May 3 (AP) — LST 1059, latest landing ship for tanks

"I had luncheon with Tom and he left me at three o'clock."

"Was that the last time you saw him alive?"

"Yes."

Brenda could feel her heart beating faster. She could hear again Francine's shrill, hysterical voice coming from this room, at 7:30 last night—and that voice a little later as she was leaving the apartment. But the Lieutenant was not through with the girl. He turned a page of his notebook and with pencil in hand said in a low voice:

"Where were you from 7:30 to 8:30 last night, Miss Norman?"

SPERRY'S STORY ON M'ALLISTER MILL PUBLISHED

The following article on "McAllister's Mill" by William Sperry, son of Mrs. Wilmer Roth, Carlisle street, was one of three such pieces by Gettysburg high school seniors published recently in the Junior Historian, official publication of the Pennsylvania Federation of Junior Historians.

One of the articles on "The Lower Marsh Creek Church," written by Miss Arlene Rohrbaugh, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Rohrbaugh, Steinwehr avenue, was published in Monday's edition of The Gettysburg Times. The third article, on "The Old Hill Church," by Miss Gloria Ecker, who resides with Mr. and Mrs. Lester Scott, East Middle street, will be published soon.

Sperry's article follows: "Of the historic ruins in Adams County, none is more interesting or has greater play upon the imagination than McAllister's Mill. The mill's chief interest lies in the fact that it was used as an underground railroad station, previous to the Civil War.

Most Southerly Station
"The mill was built in 1790 by Messrs. Gettys and Fleming, who operated it until 1827; then James McAllister bought it, with a large tract of land. James McAllister was one of the leaders of the anti-slavery movement in Adams County, and his mill was a logical station on the underground railroad. It was the most southerly station in Pennsylvania and was a part of the western route of the underground railroad which, strange as it may seem, included such places as York and Lancaster.

"McAllister's mill was a large rectangular building of granite; however, from the apex of the roof to the eaves it was finished with weatherboard. Situated on a slope, it was built so that the front of the mill, which faced east, was three stories high, while the back was only two stories. Grain was hoisted to a door in the second floor of the mill where it poured through hoppers, on the way to the grinders on the first floor.

"The mill was from 30 to 40 feet west of Rock Creek, a small southward-flowing stream east of Gettysburg. A public road ran from the Baltimore Pike on the West to the Hanover Road on the East. It passed directly beside the mill and then forded Rock Creek just above the place where the tail race ran. The mill race began about one-eighth of a mile upstream and flowed to the mill, passed underneath the road west and north of the mill, then curved and entered the mill from the west. After the water entered the mill, it went over a huge over-shot water wheel, sunken deep in the ground, so that its top was even with the first floor of the mill. From there the tail race passed the mill and went due east to the creek.

Followed the Streams
"A careful inspection of the mill as an underground railroad station reveals, the space between the sluice which carried the water over the wheel, and the wheel itself, as one probable hiding place. If this were used, they stopped the wheel, allowed the slaves to crawl over the paddles and down into the triangular space between the wheel and wall and sluice, on top. However, it seems more likely that they simply used the large cellar of the mill, and saved themselves the trouble of stopping the wheel.

"Slaves escaping by underground railroad were directed to cross the Mason and Dixon line on or near the Gettysburg-Baltimore road, and follow it until they came to the second large stream which crossed it—this was Rock creek. From there they were directed to follow the creek northward until they came to a grist mill on the west bank of the creek about one-half mile upstream. After being hidden, fed and clothed here, they were escorted, along one of three or four routes, to the next station. One route followed Rock creek past Gettysburg, thus crossing four roads; the fifth road led to Biglerville, the next station. Another route paralleled the public road to the Hanover pike, crossed this and proceeded northward through the fields to Hunt-erstown and Heidersburg. Of course there was always the route to Harrisburg in a haywagon—which was sometimes used.

"Have you read Elsie Singmaster's fine book, 'A Boy at Gettysburg?' In her book the boy, Theodore McAllister, was one of the sons of James McAllister, and the storied mill was McAllister's Mill. This book is excellent fiction with an authentic historical background, quoting from Theodore McAllister's own story of the mill's part in the underground railroad one learns that:

The Lewars Story
"The old mill sheltered many fugitive slaves from 1850 to 1860. I was, during this time, from 8 to 18 years of age. Many of these fugitives were neither seen nor heard of by any other member of our large family except myself until they were far on their way to Canada. But there were never any questions asked if quantities of rations disappeared from cellar and pantry. And I noticed that old clothing was placed very conveniently in my hand in the garret of the old home. Crouched under the lower floor and in the very pit of the old mill, I listened to some horrible tales of cruelty told by the young—mostly yellow—men, some of them with the features of the white race, as they rested their weary legs and filled themselves in preparation for another race to the bleak north. Most of them ended their tale of woe the same, 'I will never go back alive to see mothers, wives, sisters torn from their families, lashed together and driven off like cattle to some far southern slave market.' Is it any wonder that I grew up to young manhood hating slavery with a mortal hatred?"

"The mill played its part in the battle of Gettysburg, for it was situated inside the right wing of the Union Army and saw much of the fighting on the second day. Both, McAllister homestead on the hill and the mill, were used for hospitals. Union troops planted artillery in the orchard to shell the Confederates.

Today all that remains is the

East Berlin

East Berlin.—Cpl. and Mrs. Frank Wall, former residents of R. 1, were visitors in this section recently. Cpl. Wall has been in the army for more than a year, during which time his wife has been residing with relatives in East Orange, N. J., where she has been employed.

Mrs. Florence Leib and son, James, Breckville, O., were guests during the past week at the home of her mother, Mrs. Rebecca Jacobs, and her sister, Mrs. Maurice Feiser, and family.

Mrs. Michael Burgard was hostess foundation of the mill, the ruins of the mill race and dam, and the public road. But the mill served its purpose many fold: To grind grain for the residents of the community; to be a refuge for fugitive slaves; and to serve as a haven for wounded soldiers.

at her home Tuesday evening when the Womens Work Organization, Bermudian Church of the Brethren, held its regular meeting.

Recent guests of Mrs. Levi C. Gentzler and family were her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Calvin J. Nitchman, and daughters, Misses Mary Ida and Dorothy Mae, York, formerly of town.

Mrs. Leo A. Miller and son, Reid, Millville, have been visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry E. Serff.

George C. DeVine, USN, formerly of Route 1, was on leave recently, visiting his wife and children, of New Oxford, and his parents, who reside in York.

Miss Martha Berkheimer was hostess when the Girls' Guild of Holtzschamm Reformed church met recently at her home. The organization is working on a project of making scrapbooks to be sent to hospitals.

Andrew Altland, Clarence Altland, Samuel Altland, Clair Forry, Jesse

Hamme, Nathan Leppo, Emory Maul, Peter Spangler, Harry Stam- baugh, and Guy Straley have been placed on a committee to canvass Holtzschamm church members regarding the purchase of a new par- sonage for the Rev. Elwood G. John- son, Lutheran pastor.

Mrs. Donald Hull and family R. 1, have been at Camp Blanding, Fla., visiting her husband.

Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Stabley, York, were recent visitors of Mr. and Mrs. John Haar and children, near town. Pfc. Melvin R. Baker, son of Mr. and Mrs. John S. Baker, East Ber- lin R. 2, left early this week for West Virginia and expects to un- dergo further treatment for the wound he received while fighting in Germany early this winter. He had spent an extended furlough at his home after returning to the United States in March.

The Rev. Richard E. Shaffer, who resigned the pastorate of the East Berlin Evangelical and Reformed charge early in April to accept the call to the Kreutz Creek Evangeli- cal and Reformed charge, Hellam, was installed in the York county charge on Sunday afternoon with services at the Canadochy church, Delroy, in charge of the Revs. How- ard S. Fox, I. A. Raubenhold and E. O. Kreen.

St. Paul's church, Red Run and Mt. Olivet church, Bermudian, for- merly a part of the East Berlin charge, have been made a part of the Dillsburg charge. The other churches formerly served by the Rev. Mr. Shaffer have not yet se- lected a new clergyman. Supply ministers have been conducting their services.

ANTHRACITE
UP TO DAVIS

Washington, May 3 (AP)—Pennsylvania's holidaying anthracite miners looked to Economic Stabilizer William H. Davis today for a sign that they might return to work with Uncle Sam as their boss.

The War Labor Board last night routed to Davis' desk the stalemate contract dispute that has left 72,000 miners idle since Monday night when their working agreement expired.

If Davis sends the case on to the White House, as he is expected to, President Truman may follow up with an order for Interior Secretary Ickes to seize the pits and order the men to work for the government.

Stalled Over Travel Time

Davis came into the picture after WLB failed to receive a reply from John L. Lewis to its order that the expired contract be continued in effect and production resumed. Any wage adjustment would be retroactive to May 1, the board said.

Operators agreed to the order, but asked a 30-day limit on the extension.

Stalled over a $150-a-day travel time payment proposed by Labor Secretary Perkins earlier in the week, the wage negotiations were scheduled to resume today in New York. Union spokesmen said they expected the producers to offer a counter-proposal.

In the coal fields themselves, some miners insisted they would remain away from work for the rest of the week, although others said they would return as soon as they were ordered to do so by Lewis.

OPA COLLECTS
$209,159 FROM
PRICE VIOLATORS

Refunds aggregating $209,159.36 have been collected in this 10-county district for over-ceiling sales since March 11, 1943, the beginning of enforcement action against price control violators, it was announced today by Walter C. Young, director of the Harrisburg district Office of Price Administration.

The sum was paid in adjusting a total of 95 cases, most of it going to the U. S. Treasury and the balance being refunded to consumers for overcharges.

A record of local price violations reported to price panels of War Price and Rationing boards reveals that since January 1, 1945, over 75 retail dealers have been called for conferences with panels because of price violations reported against them.

Thirty of the price panel cases have been adjusted upon payment of a total of $152,640 to the district OPA office, the agency reports, and 21 license warning notices were issued, representing final reminders to violators that they faced loss of their license to do business should they continue in violation.

Food price violations lead the list with a total of 49. Refunds were collected in six cases for over-ceiling sales of used automobiles.

WAKE UP YOUR DIGESTION BELOW THE BELT
Without Stomach Relievers

To Get Happy Relief from Gassy, Bloating, Tight-around-the-Waist, Mincey You May Need This Kind of Laxative Help

When most food leaves the stomach, it is by no means fully digested. It is in the 28 feet, or more, of intestines, that the center part of digestion is done. Among the vital digestive juices that work in the intestines, the liver bile is one of the most important—especially vital to the digestion of fats. Unless the liver bile flows sufficiently, digestion of fats slows down. Food decays in bowels. You may get constipated and feel full of gassy, bloated, indigestion misery. That's when you need Beechams Pils. They help get the bile juice flowing freely, which helps you digest and eliminate in Nature's happy way. Ask your druggist for gentle, all-vegetable Beechams Pils today. Caution: Use only as directed, 25¢.
